

Ready to fly

From Salisbury Post 9/21/93

WES MILLER/THE SALISBURY POST

Meredith Hebden of Concord, a rehabilitation volunteer at Carolina Raptor Center in Charlotte, releases a red-tailed hawk in southern Rowan County Monday afternoon. The female hawk was found in May at Fort Jackson, S.C., with a broken left wing. The Raptor Center is a non-profit educational and rehabilitation facility for birds of prey such as hawks, owls, vultures and eagles. Injured birds are rehabilitated at the center and released.
