

South Charlotte News 7/27/14

DAVID T. FOSTER III - dtfooster@charlotteobserver.com

A great horned owl named Dumbledore flies over the crowd during a presentation at the Carolina Raptor Center on June 1. The Observer's Taylor Piephoff will speak about the urban adaptation of Charlotte-area raptors at The Lower Providence Community House on July 27.

JULY 27: Urban adaptation of raptors

Taylor Piephoff, local naturalist and bird expert who also writes a weekly column in the Charlotte Observer, will be the speaker at the Lower Providence women's club. The nesting habits of hawks and owls in our urban area is the topic. 3 p.m. $10. The Lower Providence Community House, 9735 Community House Road, Charlotte. 704-905-8334. www.lowerprovidencelocgabin.org.